Today's market was sharply lower on calves straight across the board. As more packer cows and bulls are coming to town the packer market has continued to drop too. This market is searching for a bottom and let's just hope it finds one soon. This market is being driven by technical aspects with traders on the futures market instead of fundamental aspects. Fat cattle have dropped about $10/cwt the last two weeks while boxed beef has continued to rise. With that being said it seems the bottom of the market should be near if we haven't seen it already. Let us know how we can help you market your livestock!
